INTRODUCTION

Corporate Social Responsibility is a form of corporate self-regulation integrated into a business model. CSR policy functions as a built-in, self-regulating mechanism whereby business monitors and ensures its active compliance with the spirit of the law, ethical standards, and international norms. A company’s corporate social responsibility, citizenship and sustainability strategy exists beyond the traditional reputation and be directly related to its business continuity, employee morale and market expansion. The global business study reveals that the success of business needs at least equal weight on society’s interests along with normal business dealings.

Companies Act 2013 obliges the corporate world to follow corporate social responsibility as their business culture. CSR activities are normally served as voluntary act and contribution, by corporate through legal proceedings. Corporate social responsibility focuses that a business has social obligation beyond making a profit. It requires a management to be accountable to the full range of stakeholders. It is the continuing commitment by the business to behave ethically and contribute to the economic development of the country while improving the quality of life of the workforce and their families and local community and society at large.

CSR is achieving commercial success in the ways that honour ethical values and respect people, communities and the natural environment. CSR is a combination of policies, education and practices which extent throughout a corporation’s operations into the communities in which they operate. CSR is the commitment of businesses to behave ethically and to contribute to the sustainable economic development by working with all stakeholders to improve their lives in the ways that are good for business and the society at large. This study covers the success story of Sakthi group of companies through the applications of corporate social responsibility as a practice in the real world entity.
